

THERAPOD –

AN INTRODUCTION TO THE WORLD'S MOST ADJUSTABLE OFFICE CHAIR...

The Therapod back-support concept was developed in Melbourne in the mid 1980's by a physiotherapist.

It became the only adjustable back-support system in the world, and as such was widely accepted by health professionals.

The back support was soon adapted into a range of office seating, and was subsequently licensed for manufacture in Australia, North America, UK & Sweden.

The 4x adjustable straps allow the user to simply 'set' the level of back support to suit their own needs.

Primarily offering a high level of lumbar support, the system also provides adjustment for the sacrum (lower back) and thoracic (shoulder) regions.

Therapod as a brand has become synonymous as not just a 'bad-back' solution, but as a 'preventative weapon' against the onset of back-related problems.

Therapod office chairs are now widely purchased by major corporations, government departments and small / medium enterprises as their 'chair of choice'.

EQUIP

Therapod chairs can be quickly adjusted by individuals to suit their specific needs.

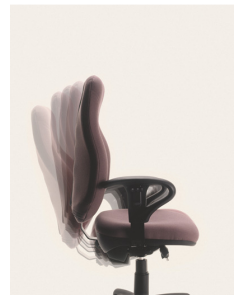

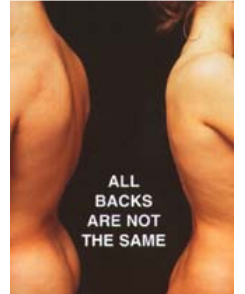

They are available in two style / sizes and the Premium Synchron mechanism is rated for 24/7 use with a 130kg weight rating and a ten year warranty.

There is no need for qualified assistance, and being a 'comfort-based' decision there is no "right or wrong" way to set the chair up.

In situations where there is hot-desking and workstations are shared, then Therapod is an excellent chair as it can be re-adjusted in moments to suit the next user.

The implementation of Therapod seating in a work-place not only minimizes the opportunity of back injury from poor posture, it has been seen to increase productivity due to staff being happier in their working environment.

Therapod chairs are certified by AFRDI to Level 6, are endorsed by the Chiropractic & Osteopathic College of Australasia (COCA) and have gained the GECA environmental rating.
