

MAKING MORE OF YOUR SPACE

Brownbuilt has been an industry pioneer since 1885 and has been responsible for many technical innovations in storage systems during that time. Brownbuilt's position as Australia's leading supplier of mobile storage systems reflects our commitment to our customers, and ongoing adaptation to the changing demands of the Australian storage market.

The Video Maxtor Mobile Storage unit has been specifically designed for high density storage of VHS video cassettes and digital video discs (DVDs), and can be integrated into any school, library, or office environment. A single transferable access aisle means that costly floor space is saved and specific 146mm deep shelves prevent wasted shelf space.

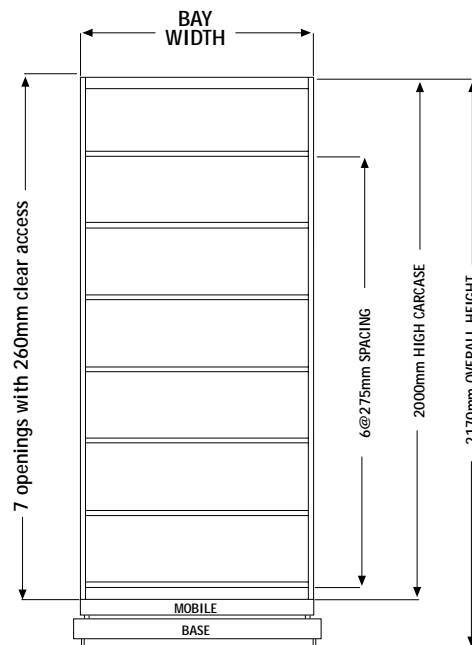

Shelves utilise a simple clip support system with 25mm vertical shelf adjustment to maximise internal space utilisation, with a choice of widths to suit individual requirements. Video storage shelves feature 15mm high retaining lips along each shelf front to prevent cassette dislodgment. Operator safety is ensured with double-face bays for stability and lateral guides to prevent bays from tipping.

Video Maxtor units can easily support full capacity bays through load wheels with sealed bearings running along welded, steel, height adjustable base modules.

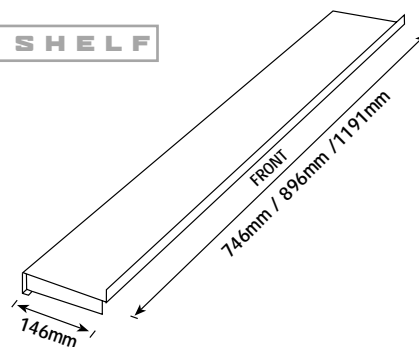

This illustrated example represents a typical Video Maxtor installation, featuring six double-face Video storage bays, with a 300mm deep plinth (fixed bay) for larger items. This configuration, with 2000mm high x 900mm wide bays, would have the capacity to store up to 2436 VHS video cassettes (30mm wide).
